

BMO Statement Against Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking

BMO Financial Group (BMO) (we, us, our) is committed to respecting human rights and stands against all forms of modern slavery and human trafficking. This statement is issued pursuant to section 54 of the United Kingdom Modern Slavery Act 2015 (the UK Act) and Part 2 of the Australian Modern Slavery Act 2018 (the Australian Act) for the financial year ending 31st October 2021. This is a consolidated statement of BMO and BMO Capital Markets Limited (ARBN 110 552 513), which is subject to the reporting requirements under both (a) the UK Act and (b) the Australian Act by virtue of its consolidated revenue, that meets the statutory threshold and its operations in Australia via its representative office in Melbourne).

Respect for human rights is reflected in our core values. This means promoting a diverse and inclusive working environment and mitigating adverse human rights impacts caused by, contributed or linked to BMO in every jurisdiction where we do business.

This Statement describes elements of our human rights program for our 2021 fiscal year, which continues to evolve and incorporate global best practices like those embodied by the United Nations Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights (UNGPs). More information about our approach to human rights and sustainability is found in our Statement on Human Rights and our 2021 Sustainability Report and Public Accountability Statement available at <https://our-impact.bmo.com/>.

On 8th November 2021, as part of the sale of BMO Global Asset Management's Europe, Middle East and Africa (EMEA) asset management business, BMO transferred its Global Asset Management (EMEA) entities to Columbia Threadneedle Investments UK International Limited, whose direct parent is Ameriprise Financial Inc. 1. Our structure, business, and supply chains

BMO is a highly diversified financial services provider headquartered in North America with approximately 44,000 employees. BMO is driven by a single purpose: to Boldly Grow the Good in business and life. To this end, by 2025, BMO has committed to mobilize CAD$300 billion for sustainable finance, which includes increasing support for small businesses and women entrepreneurs, and reducing barriers to inclusion.

BMO provides a broad range of personal and commercial banking, wealth management and investment banking products and services to approximately 12 million customers. We operate primarily in Canada and the United States and also have operations in the United Kingdom (UK), Europe, the Caribbean, Asia and Australia.

BMO Capital Markets offers a complete range of financial products and services to corporate, institutional and government clients. BMO Capital Markets has approximately 2,600 professionals in 32 locations around the world. Its lines of business include Investment and Corporate Banking and Global Markets. BMO Capital Markets operates in continental Europe through Bank of Montreal Europe PLC; in the UK through the London branch of BMO and BMO Capital Markets Limited (our UK broker-dealer and direct subsidiary of BMO). BMO Capital Markets Limited also carries on business in Australia through a representative office located in Melbourne, providing both investment banking and securities lending services to wholesale clients.

UK Operations

The BMO Capital Markets London Office provides both Investment & Corporate Banking and Global Markets services. It employs approximately 300 full time, contingent and part time staff covering both client-facing banking roles and corporate support roles (including finance, operations, HR, legal, risk management and compliance). The UK offices are located at: 95 Queen Victoria Street, London, United Kingdom, EC4V 4HG.

The Australian Offices are located at: 140 William Street, Level 33, Melbourne, VIC, 3000, Australia.

“Third-Parties” or “Suppliers” are defined as any entity with whom BMO enters, or has entered, into a commitment with to provide products and/or services to BMO and/or its customers. BMO and its subsidiaries engage with a diverse range of Third-Parties (and the use of subcontractor through Third-Parties) who provide products and/or services, including those relating to business activities that BMO outsources/offshores as part of its own service delivery and offerings to its customers. Services include but are not limited to: human resources, advertising and marketing, information technology, business operations, and real estate. To a lesser extent, we engage with Suppliers that may employ workers who provide cleaning, catering, travel, hospitality and call centre services.

In 2021, we purchased goods and services in North America with a total cost of approximately CAD$5.3 billion from approximately 6,828 suppliers. Of that amount, approximately CAD$3.8 billion was spent through our Canadian operations and CAD$1.5 billion was spent through our U.S. operations. Through our operations in EMEA, we purchased goods and services with a total cost of approximately £51.8 million. Our Melbourne office relies on the provision of goods and services from a number of internal and external suppliers, including, but not limited to cleaning, telecommunications, payroll and financial and regulatory reporting. External suppliers are predominately engaged at a global level, but our Melbourne office also has a number of its own suppliers which do not contract with any of our other global entities. These include administrative services such as courier, catering, maintenance, newspaper subscriptions, document destruction, office supplies and electricity providers.

2. Modern slavery risks in our operations and supply chains

The nature of our business means that the majority of our workforce consists of skilled and experienced individuals. There are modern slavery risks associated with having operations in countries ranked by the Global Slavery Index as having an increased prevalence of modern slavery. However, we consider that the overall risk that our business has caused or contributed to modern slavery to be low, having regard to our skilled workforce and our robust global policies and procedures.

However, there remains a risk that our operations may be indirectly linked to modern slavery as a result of our business activities, including via our investments and customer activities. Other risks of modern slavery such as forced labour and child labour may exist in the outer tiers of the supply chain supporting the provision of certain product categories, such as the conflict minerals used in technology hardware and electronics; timber and steel used in the production of office furniture; and textiles used in uniforms. In addition, there are potential risks of modern slavery such as debt bondage and deceptive recruiting for sub-contracted labour which supports services provided by third-party vendors such as cleaning, property maintenance, security, food services, transport, courier services and accommodation. The risk of modern slavery in these industries may be intensified in countries with a higher prevalence of modern slavery.

3. Actions taken to assess and address modern slavery risks

BMO and its subsidiaries adopt the same policies and processes in all locations, and therefore we have provided a single, consolidated description of actions taken to assess and address modern slavery risks in this Part 3.

a) Our standards, policies, and codes of conduct relating to modern slavery and human trafficking

Our Corporate Policies and Standards apply globally (and BMO subsidiaries are required to comply with them to the extent they are applicable to their business operations) and outline frameworks and objectives to appropriately identify, assess, manage, monitor and report significant risks. Our Corporate Policy and Standard development process is initiated with an assessment that identifies the principles with which the Board and/or senior management provide oversight over material risks and risk management frameworks. BMO requires Policies and Standards to be assessed at least every two years and updated as necessary. Internal stakeholders provide input during the policy development and update process, as well as when developing supporting documents such as guidelines and directives. BMO's Human Resources Management Corporate Policy alongside our recruitment and diversity, equity and inclusion guidelines, reflect our commitment to ensure that all policies, procedures, programs and practices comply with regulatory and legal requirements in the jurisdictions that we operate in, and formalize our commitment to non-discrimination and equality of opportunity.

BMO's Code of Conduct (Code) is the ethical guide for BMO's Board of Directors, the Board of Directors for each of BMO's subsidiaries and all employees. Based on our values of integrity, empathy, diversity, and responsibility, the Code requires us to consider the impact of our business decisions on our stakeholders and the communities where we do business. It encourages us to do the right thing and follow both the letter and spirit of the law.

Our Supplier Code of Conduct (Supplier Code) outlines the principles that BMO expects our suppliers to support: integrity, fair dealing and sustainability. Suppliers must abide by applicable employment standards, labour, non-discrimination and human rights legislation. In jurisdictions where employment standards and laws do not address discrimination or human rights, we expect and encourage suppliers to adopt policies and codes of conduct that consider the UNGPs as endorsed by the UN Human Rights Council, and to convey these expectations to their own suppliers. Suppliers must not tolerate slavery, servitude, forced or compulsory labour, human trafficking or child labour in their business or supply chain. Harassing conduct – intentional or not – should be prohibited in their workplaces. Suppliers must comply with workers' right to join a trade union, or to have recognized employee representation under local law and follow the applicable wage and hour laws and regulations in the jurisdictions in which they operate. BMO's procurement agreement templates at all risk levels include a model clause that states that the supplier is aware, understands, and will respect the principles of BMO's Supplier Code. At higher levels of risk, more bespoke language may be used, depending on the context.

BMO has an established Anti-Money Laundering (AML) Program comprised of policies, procedures, and risk assessments on AML, anti-terrorist financing, and sanctions measures. The AML Program is designed to prevent the use of BMO's financial products and services for the purpose of money laundering, terrorist financing or sanctioned activity. Among other risks, the AML Program seeks to identify the risks associated with human trafficking and modern slavery.

Our Third Party Risk Management (TPRM) Directive and corresponding TPRM Program outline our framework of structures, systems, processes and controls, which we use to engage and manage risks associated with Third Parties throughout the Third Party Lifecycle. To ensure a consistent approach across the group, BMO has developed an in-depth TPRM Operating Guide that is supported with a training program that is open to everyone within the organization with a key focus on Supplier Manager and our Risk Stakeholders.

b) Risk Assessment and Management

Employees

We comply with applicable employment standards and human rights legislation in the jurisdictions in which BMO operates. Our hiring and recruitment procedures comply with applicable legislation to ensure a fair and equitable approach to hiring.

We respect and promote diversity, equality and human rights in our workforce. In particular:

- we recognize gender equality as a fundamental human right;
- support the right to freedom of association and collective bargaining (see BMO Statement on Freedom of Association and Collective Bargaining);
- stand against forced, compulsory and/or child labour; and
- stand against discrimination in all parts of the employment life cycle, including discrimination on the grounds of ethnicity, race, disability, gender, identity or sexual orientation.

Moreover, we are committed to providing equitable access to opportunities and enabling growth for groups who have historically encountered systemic social and economic barriers to inclusion.

We are committed to workplace diversity and inclusion, which is one of our core corporate values. We strive to create an environment where all our people can succeed, supporting individual needs by:

- providing employees with disabilities with workplace accommodations, technical devices or additional support to succeed at work; and
- making available the tools and resources to assist every employee to contribute to their full potential.

To support our commitment to diversity, equity and inclusion, BMO has operating procedures that aim to create a safe and inclusive workplace for all. These include, but are not limited to, programs regarding health and safety, anti-harassment, bullying and victimisation at work, resolution programs and grievance procedures, workplace violence, employee protection plans, drug-free workplace programs, drug and alcohol guidelines, and flexible work arrangements. We also have programs such as “Speak Up!”, an anonymous external whistleblower service (see further details in part c below) that encourages and supports employees and other stakeholders to speak up about a concern, and protection against any form of retaliation for raising a concern.

Third-Parties

As noted above, BMO’s Supplier Code sets out the standards that we expect our suppliers to meet in respecting human rights, upholding ethical business practices and complying with the law. The TPRM framework defines how the enterprise governs, identifies, measures, mitigates, monitors, and reports Third-Party risks.

As required by the TPRM framework, we conduct due diligence before entering into an arrangement with a new Third-Party provider, as well as ongoing due diligence with existing Third-Parties to ensure they remain in compliance with BMO’s policies. If we or one of our Third Parties recognizes a potential gap or weakness in their control environment, or if they identify a risk that they are unable to mitigate or manage, we will work with them to assess the impact and determine a solution.

We have incorporated supplier diversity and inclusion into BMO’s procurement practices allowing for more opportunities for diverse suppliers.

We are continuously working to address the risk of modern slavery and human trafficking in our supply chain, and address broader supply chain diversification, including due diligence on human rights matters. We are leveraging tools and developing processes to integrate identification, management and mitigation of supply chain-related environmental, social and governance risks into our TPRM Program. BMO’s Sustainability and Procurement teams are collaborating to spearhead these efforts.

Customers

As a financial services provider with customers in multiple jurisdictions, we recognize the risks associated with transactions that may be related to modern slavery and human trafficking. To address these risks, we have incorporated specific processes into our AML Program to identify risks of human trafficking and modern slavery.

Risks are evaluated on various factors, including customer type, geography, industries and product. High-risk customers are subject to enhanced due diligence as per our AML Program.

Our AML Program seeks to identify and verify customer information, monitor customer transactions for unusual activity, and report suspicious activity to the relevant authorities in an effort to identify criminal activities, including threats associated with human trafficking, that may be linked to money laundering, terrorist financing, or financial or trade sanctions.

BMO’s AML Program also participates in Project Protect, a FINTRAC initiative, which aims to raise awareness of trends that may demonstrate transactional activity consistent with human trafficking. In 2019, BMO joined a coalition of twelve leading banks and six survivor organizations to launch Finance Against Slavery and Trafficking (FAST) at the United Nations General Assembly. FAST aims to provide financial institutions, service providers, regulators, government agencies and other stakeholders around the world with a framework to match identified survivors to basic financial services.

As a signatory to the Equator Principles, BMO Capital Markets has committed to assessing and managing the environmental and social risks associated with all lending transactions that are within the scope of those principles. Meeting this commitment involves considering human rights matters related to any such transactions, including the health and safety of communities, Indigenous rights, workers’ rights and community relations. The number of reviewed Equator Principles transactions for 2021 is reported in BMO’s Sustainability Report.

c) Mechanisms to Report Concerns and Complaints

We provide multiple channels for our employees to report any Code, legal or regulatory violations, including “Speak Up!” – an anonymous external whistleblower service that is available to our employees and other BMO stakeholders (for example, our suppliers) in multiple languages, 24 hours per day, every day of the year. Internal tools (e.g., procedural documents, job aids) set out the process, accountabilities and contact details for the various reporting channels, as well as BMO’s commitment to protecting employees against retaliation Stakeholders can also contact BMO to discuss their concerns through a variety of channels: the CEO’s office, Investor Relations (IR), Sustainability, Ethics and Conduct, Ombudsperson, Corporate Secretary and BMO’s Client Contact Centre. BMO Harris also has an online support tool and “Contact us” form.

d) Training and Awareness

All BMO employees must complete our Ethics, Legal and Compliance Training program on a regular basis. This training includes information on BMO’s Code of Conduct principles, predicate offences for money laundering, including human trafficking and the associated red flags. The rate of completion of such training and completed hours of training are tracked and reported in BMO’s Sustainability Report.

Additional and specialized training is provided to employees who manage and oversee third parties within BMO.

4. Assessing the effectiveness of our actions

As noted in our Statement on Human Rights, we commit to tracking progress and performance, and providing best-in-class transparency and disclosure. Responsibility for human rights is shared across BMO. We will seek to assess the effectiveness of our actions over the course of the next reporting period by tracking the progress of the following goals:

- Implementing a quarterly supplier screening and enhanced due diligence process for major suppliers on environmental and social risk, including on the topic of human rights and modern slavery
- Ongoing monitoring of reports received relating to modern slavery claims made via our reporting channels
- Collaborating with industry peers and external stakeholders to develop best practice mechanisms to remedy adverse human rights impacts, including through procurement focused working groups and industry associations like the Equator Principles.

5. Other information

BMO regularly engages with non-governmental organizations and community groups on various sustainability topics, including potential human rights matters. External stakeholders may also engage with BMO through feedback channels including at sustainability@bmo.com.

6. Process of consultation and approval

Various business lines and functions within BMO are consulted to update this joint Statement on an annual basis, including: Legal & Regulatory Compliance, Procurement, Sustainability, Human Resources, Financial Crimes Risk Management, Third-Party Risk Management and Enterprise Risk and Portfolio Management (ERPM). These groups have global mandates, which includes the subsidiaries to which this Statement applies. Accordingly, these internal stakeholders provided input in relation to BMO and its wholly owned or controlled subsidiaries.
